

Meditation from Fr. Bede Jarrett (d. 1934) - Dominican historian, lecturer, and longtime Provincial of St. Dominic's in London

Is there, of a truth, much heroism in my method of carrying out the gospel? My hours of rising are regulated by my work; are they ever regulated by my piety? Weekday Mass persistently followed may be a difficulty, but it is certainly at least an occasional possibility. How many times do I assist on a weekday at that which I profess by Faith is the very sacrifice of Calvary? It would be very hard to go regularly; precisely, it would be heroic - an outward and visible sign of an inward invisible love that passed the love of ordinary souls.

Nor is it merely in relation to God's worship that this heroism is to be shown. There is the monotonous grind of daily life. My charity, my patience, my tolerance, my truthfulness, my love of justice - are they not rather carelessly interpreted and put into practice? Is there much heroism in the way I manifest them? Perhaps I am very often repeating to myself that it is easy to be heroic; easy to die for one's Faith, but hard to live for it; easy to bear in patience the great sorrows of life, but difficult to put up with daily and hourly annoyances. But the heroic is precisely that which is most difficult; the word means no more than that. If, consequently, to live for one's Faith is harder to die for it, then of the two, to live for one's Faith is the more heroic. Perhaps, for certain souls to bear quietly the breakup of a friendship (it is difficult to imagine anything more terrible in life) is not so trying as to refrain from impatience when, in a moment of hurry, a shoelace is broken. This last for them would be the true test of sanctity.

Now, have I not to confess that these true tests of holiness would find me, indeed, very far from success? Have I not avoided too often any way that seems to be rather out of the ordinary? ... For me, kindness, generosity even, may be cloaks of malice and excuses for not loving God. It is no use my being kind or philanthropic or prayerful unless God's love burns within me. If I have not charity, the rest profits me nothing.

JULY 24, 2022 - SEVENTH SUNDAY AFTER PENTECOST

I NTROIT: We have received thy mercy, O God, in the midst of thy temple: According to thy name, O God, so also is thy praise unto the ends of the earth: thy right hand is full of justice. Great is the Lord, and exceedingly to be praised in the city of our God, in his mountain.

C OLLECT: Lord, we beseech Thee, mercifully grant us the spirit to think and do always the things that are right: that we, who can not subsist without Thee, may by Thee be enabled to live according to Thy will.

E PISTLE: (Rom 8:12-17) Brethren, We are debtors, not to the flesh, to live according to the flesh. For if you live according to the flesh, you shall die: but if by the spirit you mortify the deed of the flesh, you shall live. For whosoever are led by the Spirit of God, they are the sons of God. For you have not received the spirit of bondage again in fear, but you have received the spirit of adoption of sons, whereby we cry: Abba (Father). For the Spirit himself giveth testimony to our spirit, that we are the sons of God. And if sons, heirs also: heirs indeed of God, and joint heirs with Christ.

Strengthen me, O Lord, that I may not live according to the desires of the flesh; but resist them firmly by the power of Thy Spirit, that I may not die the eternal death.

G OСПEL: (Luke 16:1-9) At that time, Jesus spoke to his disciples this parable: There was a certain rich man who had a steward: and the same was accused unto him that he had wasted his goods. And he called him, and said to him: How is it that I hear this of thee? give an account of thy stewardship; for now thou canst be steward no longer. And the steward said within himself: What shall I do, because my lord taketh away from me my stewardship? To dig, I am not able: to beg I am ashamed. I know what I will do, that when I shall be removed from the stewardship, they may receive me into their houses. Therefore calling together every one of his lord's debtors, he said to the first: How much dost thou owe my lord? But he said: A hundred barrels of oil. And he said to him: Take thy bill, and sit down quickly, and write fifty, Then he said to another: And how much dost thou owe? Who said: A hundred quarters of wheat. He said to him: Take thy bill, and write eighty. And the Lord commended the unjust steward, forasmuch as he had done wisely: for the children of this world are wiser in their generations than the children of light. And I say to you: Make unto you friends of the mammon of iniquity, that when you shall fail, they may receive you into everlasting dwellings.

Readings, Reflections and Prayers from Fr. Leonard Goffine's The Church's Year

Prayer to Mary, Queen of the Holy Rosary

O Virgin Mary, grant that the recitation of thy Rosary may be for me each day, in the midst of my manifold duties, a bond of unity in my actions, a tribute of filial piety, a sweet refreshment, an encouragement to walk joyfully along the path of duty. Grant, above all, O Virgin Mary, that the study of thy fifteen mysteries may form in my soul, little by little, a luminous atmosphere, pure, strengthening, and fragrant, which may penetrate my understanding, my will, my heart, my memory, my imagination, my whole being. So shall I acquire the habit of praying while I work, without the aid of formal prayers, by interior acts of admiration and of supplication, or by aspirations of love. I ask this of thee, O Queen of the Holy Rosary, through Saint Dominic, thy son of predilection, the renowned preacher of thy mysteries, and the faithful imitator of thy virtues. Amen.
